WHAT IMMIGRATION MEANS.

Dearth of Labor the Great Drawback to the South, Crippling the Manufacturers and Planters

AN OPPORTUNE TIME FOR WORK.

Dearth of labor is the great drawback of the south, felt in every community, retarding every line of enterprise and depriving every property owner in some measure of the just returns of his thrift. It is this fact that has set on foot an investigation into industrial conditions, out of which was evolved the immigration movement that has gained such widespread popularity.

This dearth of common labor not only cripples factories in meeting their demands, planters in harvesting their crops and householders in keeping up their establishments, but it actually interferes with the development of the country to its full wealth producing capacity. It is there that the condition is serious and there is no hope in the outlook by the natural gain in population.

This shortage of labor is used with telling effect by commercial and industrial bodies in other parts of the country to the serious detriment of the progress of the entire south, and as it is well known that there is no surplus of labor in any portion of the south, it is a matter of vital importance to the progress of Paducah and other towns and localities in Jackson's Purchase, that we make every effort to overcome these conditions.

The farmers of Jackson's Purchase have been blessed with bounteous crops, and throughout this section the cry goes up for help. Men and women unused to such labor, have been compelled to assist in the field and in the harvest to protect the immense crops and save them from loss.

The factories in Paducah in some instances have found it difficult to secure sufficient labor to operate their plants to the full capacity. Especially is this true where a large amount of female labor is used. Happily, there is no shortage in Paducah in skilled labor, as all the lines that employ expert labor and mechanics are well supplied.

In the homes of Paducah people, in the hotels and restaurants, it is almost impossible to get reliable help. That this condition affects the progress of the city, we have only to refer to the fact that recently the Paducah Commercial club lost a splendid opportunity to locate a large branch factory of the Hamilton-Brown Shoe company, owing to the fact that the representatives of this company feared they could not secure sufficient help in Paducah and surrounding territory to operate their great plant. They would have employed from 800 to 1,200 hands.

Under the circumstances, we can well understand why the citizens of Paducah are enthusiastic over this plan of the Commercial club to bring a large number of desirable immigrants from abroad to settle on our vacant land, to supply labor for our fields, to fill vacant positions in our factories, and to supply servants in the homes of the people. It is a movement of vital importance to the citizens of Jackson's Purchase, to the farmers of McCracken county, and to the business men of Paducah, and it is highly gratifying to see the great interest being shown by our local people in this work of the Commercial club. We are not alone in this movement. Other cities throughout the south are organizing.

It is not the purpose of the Commercial clubs in Jackson's Purchase to promote a movement that will effect skilled labor in any measure, except beneficiary by creating more demand for house and construction work. That it will greatly benefit the farmers throughout Jackson's Purchase, by the location of a large number of immigrants of the right sort on suitable farms as truck farmers, must be self-evident to every thinking person. These thrifty, intelligent immigrants from abroad farming on land now unproductive, will add to the material wealth and prosperity of every property owner in southwestern Kentucky.

This movement should appeal not only to the citizens of Paducah, but to every land owner in McCracken county. The indications are that this movement will meet with large success. The design of the Paducah Commercial club is to make it a thoroughly popular movement, embracing every interest in Jackson's Purchase, and taking in Cairo and Metropolis, which also would be benefited by the plan of work mapped out.

The convention to be held on October 4 and 5, should be attended by every business man and property owner in Paducah. The attendance from other sections of the Purchase promises to be large, and as a result of this convention, ten thousand people, having property interests in Jackson's Purchase, ought to enroll themselves as members of the immigration bureau of the Paducah Commercial club.

The Commercial clubs, mayors and leading citizens of Kuttawa, Marion, Murray, Benton, Mayfield, Hickman, Milburn and Columbus, should join hands with the Paducah Commercial club in this great effort. The Louisville Commercial club has been invited and it is believed that it will send a strong delegation to co-operate with the progressive people of southwestern Kentucky in this immigration movement.

It is the opportune time for strong, energetic work in the interest of immigration, and the up-building of this end of the state. The success of this movement is of vastly more importance to the business men of Jackson's Purchase than a few days, time in ordinary routine of business. Every individual is urged to constitute himself a delegate to the convention.—Paducah Sun.

COMPROMISE

In McChesney's Suit Against Louisville Herald.

Secretary of the State H. V. McChesney went to Smithland yesterday to be present at the trial of the criminal libel suit filed against the Louisville Herald by him several years ago growing out of charges made by that paper during his race for Secretary of State. A judgment was rendered in a former suit for $1,500 damages and went to the court of appeals, where a decision has never been rendered as yet.

The case is as against Young E. Allison and George Riley, editor and Frankfort correspondent of the paper at that time.

After McChesney had left Mr. W. E. Grayot received a message from his brother John L. Grayot, who is Commonwealth's attorney of that district to effect that a compromise has been reached and the suit dropped.—Frankfort Journal.

IMPORTANT ITEMS ABOUT THE MINES

Igneour Dike Vein Uncovered by W. S. Lowrey Near Levas, Rich Strike

ONE OF THE BEST IN MANY MOONS.

Chas. Jennings cut the biggest vein of lead and fluor spar yet found in this district on the Glendale Mining Co.'s, property, owned by Morganfield capitalists, among whom are Drury & Drury, John Crow and Thomas Dyer.

Igneour Dike vein found to contain good ore of lead and fluor spar, near Levas, with one of the Igneour Diker. There has been found lead and fluor spar, the surface rock foundation is very much like that in and around the "Old Jim Mines." The strike was made near a sink hole, being only a few feet away and the chances are good for finding this vein in sink holes like those at the old Jim as the sink hole is now in line for the vein and only a few feet from where the strike of lead and fluor spar was made. Mining men declare this to be the first made in western Kentucky where the Igneour Dike veins shows to be mineralized with fluor spar and lead ore.

The dike that this strike was made on was prospected near View, Ky., by Wm. Lowrey, and plainly shows on map of the U. S. Geological survey made by E. O. Ulrich and W. S. T. Smith in 1904; And Mr. E. O. Ulrich speaks of the above dike vein in his report on page No. 103, also speaks of Lowrey's prospect work on the same page. Done on same dike vein as above mentioned.

For the last two or three years Mr. Lowrey has done more or less prospect work along this dike vein expecting to locate good ore with this Igneour dike and at last has found what he was searching for, fluor spar and lead. The sort of ore the mill men are looking for, in the Kentucky mining districts. Mr. Lowrey aims to organize a company and develop this property with a deep shaft at an early date.

Theodore Klarer, of Louisville, the president, and Edward F. W. Kaiser general manager, accompanied by Leo Klarer and other stock holders, have taken charge of the Eclipse mine, relieving Wm. Miller of the above positions. Mr. Miller still retains some stock. The mine has been placed in charge of R. D. Drescher as general supt. And it is the intention of the new management to install a large mill of the most advanced type to more effectually separate the products of this mine. It is reported that Mr. Miller will go to Colorado for his wife's health. He has mining interest there also.

Let every resident of the town and county, give the mining interest a push, and we will soon have the district second to none. Don't get sore or knock every man who comes to the town to spend a dollar, or to leave any of his money, for that helps us all. We all get and want a part of it, give strangers, seeking investment, the gladhand.

With the proposed new mills for the Eclipse mine, the Edwards, the Redhill and the Lowrey and grinding machinery at the Riley, more machinery will have come into the district than in any previous year. And it represents the confidence that properties will all be big dividend these payers soon.

Capt. Haase is quite busy at the Asbridge mine, and has two shafts in operation, and is raising about 10 tons of ore a day. The Capt. certainly knows a good thing when he sees it.

The best men we have in our town is the general good of the town is the one you always see in the front seat of the progressive band wagon. He is the first to extend an open and warm hand to greet the stranger and welcome him to the best town in the state. He will resent an insult to the town as quickly as he would a slur at a member of his family. He very politely invites the chronic croaker to move on. He is ever ready to give his just proportion to every public enterprise. He talks up the town at home and abroad and believes it to be the best place on earth in which to live, and desires to be buried here when he dies. Let us all try to be like this man for one year and our little city will take on a new life and improve as never before in its history.—Livingston Banner.

Robinson Crusoe's Island Destroyed.

Among the incidents of the recent earthquake which wrought such havoc along the coast of Chile, according to reports which have just been received, was the destruction of the island of Juan Fernandez.

From a sentimental point of view, this is the greatest of all the sad features of the disaster. The structures of brick and mortar constituting the cities destroyed will be replaced on a more splendid scale; even the death of the inhabitants will chiefly affect their friends and relatives, who will find consolation as the years go by. But the civilized world will for all time deplore the fact that Robinson Crusoe's island has sunk into the sea from whence it came.

This island was the largest of a group of three known to be of volcanic origin, and differing greatly in fauna and flora from the mainland of Chile, 350 miles away. It was sparsely settled, even at the time of its destruction, and while the soil and climate were fertile, the inhabitants made but little effort to develop it. To all appearance it differed but little from what it was when the buccaneer Seckman, Alexander Selkirk, was put ashore there 200 years ago. Selkirk had quarreled with the captain of the pirate vessel on which he sailed and at his own request was left alone on the island. Here he spent four years and four months, in the beginning of eighteenth century, and here he underwent those experiences which furnished the basis of the most universally popular story in the English language. He was rescued in 1709 by Captain Woodes Rogers, of the Increase prize-ship, and afterwards rose to be a lieutenant on H. M. S. Weymouth, on board of which he died in 1723.

Four years after Selkirk's rescue Captain Rogers published his "Cruising Voyage Round the World" and in the same year appeared Captain Cook's "Voyage to the South Sea." From these two books Deford drew the materials which were woven into the fadeless story of Robinson Crusoe.

What child has ever grown to man's estate without becoming familiar with the life and adventures of Crusoe and his man Friday, his imagination kindling at the patience, the resourcefulness and the unflinching courage of the castaway and his one lone companion. And what youth, on an appropriate Friday afternoon, has not declaimed that equally immortal ballad, "I am monarch of all I survey?"

There were not many pilgrims to this island shrine, in the bosom of the Pacific, but it was a satisfaction to know that it still existed, practically as it was when Crusoe kept his weary vigil for a friendly sail.

MRS. GEO. ROBERTS PASSES AWAY

Leaves a Husband, Two Daughters and a Host of Friends and Relatives

"To die is gain" "This is the last and greatest contribution to mankind." Over the mouth of the grave the perfect and the imperfect submit to their final separation—the dust shall return to the earth as it was; and the spirit shall return to God who gave it.

But the voice of the living is: "Help Lord; for the godly man ceases; and the faithful fall from among the children of men."

Mrs. Lou Roberts, an estimable Christian lady, of the Iron Hill neighborhood, died Aug. 27, 1906. Aged 48 years.

She professed religion at Old Sugar Grove thirty-three years ago, and was received into the church at that place and was baptized by Rev. J. L. Hughes a month later—this was her Christian home during her life.

The Rev. W. T. Oakley, her pastor, preached funeral on the 28th to a large and sympathetic congregation, from this text: "That God may be all in all." After which her remains were laid away by tender loving hands, in the beautiful cemetery at Sugar Grove, to sleep the years away.

She was the daughter of W. H. and Martha A. Baker and sister of Jno. W. Baker, of Mo.

Her father died when she was a mere child. She married Geo. Roberts twenty-five years ago. She was the mother of two children, Edna and Annie. In her death the children have lost their best friend and wisest counselor and the husband the loving companion of his early manhood, and the community, church and Sunday school a noble Christian character whose light will shine as the stars in the firmament forever and ever.

We can not do justice to her memory or give full utterance to our emotions of sympathy so justly due to her afflicted husband and children, and the church and Sunday school which mourns on account of her absence. But we are assured that "affliction does not spring from the ground nor trouble arise by chance" and that "all things work together for the good of those who love God." The labors of this faithful servant of God, in the home, the community, the church and the Sunday school, are recorded on high. Her personal labors on earth are ended, but she being dead, her memory speaks and admonishes her survivors in the community, church and Sunday school to be also ready. Death will doubtless demand some of you this year and soon all living Sunday school workers will be numbered with the dead. A voice from heaven proclaims: "Blessed are the dead that die in the Lord, and a response seems to come back from the tomb. Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do it with thy might." "The night cometh in which no man can work."

Goodby, dearest Sister, you have left us;

Here your loss we deeply feel; But it is God that has bereft us; He can all our sorrows heal— Yet again we hope to meet you When the day of life is fled; When in heaven with joy to greet you, Where no farewell tear is shed. Through days of light and gladness, Through days of love and life, Through joy and smiles and sunshine, Through days with beauty rife; When absent from each other, O'er mountain, vale or sea, The Lord of love and gladness Keep watch 'tween me and thee.

Through days of doubt and darkness, In fear and trembling breath; Through mists of sin and sorrow, In tears and grief and death, The Lord of life and glory, The King of earth and sea, The Lord who guarded Israel Keep watch 'tween you and me.

Resolved, that we, as a community, Sunday school and church, bow submissively to the effective dispensation of God's providence and sympathize deeply with the afflicted and bereft, friends, husband and children of the deceased.

God bless Aunt Martha—the mother—in her old age.

We recommend earnest and importunate prayer that God will overrule this sad dispensation of his providence for his glory and the good of us all, the prosperity of the Sunday school and the salvation of many souls.

T. L. WALKER, Elder and Supt. Sugar Grove Sunday School.

Obituary.

James C. Loyd was born Aug. 7, 1892. He was the first born child of Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Loyd. He died Aug. 22, 1896, a little over fourteen years of age. He was always a regular attendant at Sunday school and took a great interest in his lessons. As a token of esteem in which he was held, the boys of his class were the pall-bearers at the funeral services. Before he could talk plainly his mother taught him to pray—God bless such mothers—and this was his prayer: "God bless papa and mamma and Jamie and everybody for Christ sake. Amen." There were five children born after him, and of these, one by one, were included in his little prayer before he retired at night. He was very thoughtful and affectionate and never failed to kiss mamma and papa, if at home, before he retired at night. Although entering the period of young manhood, yet this seemed to be a part of his loving nature even up to the day of his last illness. Since he has been helping his father in the store, he would never leave for the evening without saying "good-night papa."

He was always obedient and ever willing to his task. He professed religion at one of Bro. Halsell's meetings, who assisted by Bro. Barbee, a few years since. Last fall during the meeting held by Mrs. Wooley at Fredonia, his mother talked to him about his spiritual condition and he seemed to be well satisfied that he was one of Christ's children. He possessed no bad habits and did not use vulgar or profane language. He had many friends and at the funeral services they paid him the highest tokens of respect and the sweetest ministries of love.

In the absence of the pastor the funeral was conducted by the Rev. J. F. Price in the presence of a large and respectful audience. The floral tribute was beautiful indeed.

He is gone, but his life on earth is like the dawn of a brighter day. In the beautiful beyond it is hoped that father and mother and brothers will gather with Jamie where they may live and love forever. A FRIEND.

Robbing Yourself

That is just what you are doing when you fail to get regular and sufficient sleep. Your body requires this unconscious period for repair work; without it your nerve energy becomes exhausted, and you are tired, worn-out, nervous, excitable; have headache, neuralgia, indigestion, poor appetite, or other ailments caused by a lack of nerve force. Make it your business to sleep. If you are restless, take Dr. Miles' Nervine; it soothes and strengthens the nerves, and brings sweet, refreshing, life-giving sleep, and gives the organs power to work naturally. Try it to-day.

"I had a severe spell of fever, which left me in a very weak condition and very nervous. I had severe spells of headache and neuralgia, and could sleep but very little. Every effort that was made to recover my strength was of no avail until I began taking Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine. After I commenced to take the Nervine my sleep was profound and restful, and the pains in my head, as well as the neuralgia pains, left me to a certain extent and I grew gradually better."

Situations Guaranteed.

We do not guarantee situations to prospective students in order to get their patronage. Schools of mail do not resort to such dishonest practices. Fake schools "guarantee" situations in order to secure students, because they have no other inducements to offer. Our work is so thorough that a guarantee is superfluous. Business men are so eager to get competent help here that a large percentage of our students take positions before they graduate. See us before making arrangements for your business and shorthand education at some inferior, fake school. We will give pleasure in telling you all about the "book-holes" in the "position guarantee" of dishonest schools. Catalogue free.

Those lands above the clouds of care, Where stands my castle in the air, A pledge of immortality.

HELPS TO STUDY.

After the formal condemnation, early in the morning, they bound Him, like He was a blood-thirsty bandit, and led him to Pilate, the Roman governor. The Jews, being under Roman domination, did not have the legal power to pronounce the sentence of death. They must get the Roman procurator to confirm their sentence of death, if possible.

An interesting episode occurs in connection with the trial of Jesus, and that is the suicide of Judas. His conscience aroused to a sense of his awful crime. He thought he would intercept the death of Jesus by a return of the money, when they received it in scorn and disdain. He went and hanged himself. The only legacy he has left the world is the "field of blood," purchased with the price of Christ's death, and an unenviable reputation. What mother would dare to name her child Judas.

When they brought Him before Pilate, they would enter into the judgment hall (Jno. 18:28), lest they should be defiled, straining at a gnat and swallowing a camel. When Pilate demanded their accusation, they evaded a direct reply (Jno. 18:30) and said that the very fact that they had brought him was proof that He was a malefactor. Pilate demanded that they should judge Him by their law. They confessed their subjection by stating that they could not put Him to death. They realized that the charge of blasphemy, upon which they had condemned Him, would have no force with a Roman governor. They must change their tactics. Some shrewd fellow suggested that they accuse Him of sedition, of insurrection, and of disloyalty. There was not a vestige of reason for such an accusation, but these seemingly conscientious religious leaders of the nation took up the accusation and clamored for his death. Pilate then asked Him if He was king of the Jews. Christ acknowledged that He was. When they made many accusations against Him, He answered not a word, and Pilate marvelled. It seems from the John's report, ch. 18:33-37, that Pilate took Christ into the judgment hall and examined Him privately. Pilate privately asked Him if He was king of the Jews. Then Jesus explained unto him the nature of His kingdom,—that it was not of this world, but that it was a spiritual kingdom, out that He reigned in the hearts of mankind by the principles and power of truth. To a man who did not regard truth nor conscientious principles this was astonishing, nevertheless the simple unvarnished statement of Christ convinced Pilate of His innocence. Therefore he brought him out to the Jews and said: "I find no fault with Him." But this only aroused them into a fiercer rage of fury (Lk. 23:5), and they accused him of stirring up the people in Judea and Galilee. When the last provocation was mentioned, Pilate thought he saw a way out of his difficulty. Herod, the ruler of Galilee was at Jerusalem and he would send Him to Herod for trial. This pleased the Galilean ruler who wished to see Him perform some miracle. When Herod questioned Christ closely and He did not answer, it was provoking to the Galilean ruler. Wherever they took Christ the dogged priests and scribes followed Him and maligned Him with vehement accusations. Herod had his soldiers to mock and array Him in a gorgeous robe as if mocking His pretensions to kingship, and sent Him back to Pilate. Herod and Pilate had been at enmity, but in this transaction they were reconciled. How often is it the case that bitter enemies will be reconciled and unite their efforts against an innocent person or a righteous cause.

THE TEACHER—METHODS OF TEACHING.

- Discipline.—1. Have the scholars to close all books and papers not needed for reference.
2. Hold every one individually responsible for the answer to every question and the reproduction of every statement by asking the question first and then calling on the one you wish to answer.
3. The teacher should speak distinctly and each scholar should speak distinctly so that each one can understand everything that is said.
4. The teacher should greet every scholar cordially.
5. He should keep a vigilant eye on each member of the class, and have perfect order and attention.
6. Begin teaching only when attention is secured, and stop the moment it ceases.
7. Give each scholar an opportunity to ask questions, or to express himself briefly on any topic.
8. Encourage free expression, but discountenance all tendency to argument.
9. Provide carefully that every scholar has something in the lesson personally to hear, to see, to learn, to remember.

Letter from Texas.

EDITOR PRESS:—Having been asked to do so, will try to give a brief description of this place and surrounding country.

Amarillo is a growing western town situated in Potter county, Tex. about 300 miles north-west of Fort Worth and 500 miles south-east of Denver.

It is the commercial metropolis of the Texas Panhandle, with no other city of equal size and importance within two hundred miles.

The city has a population of about six thousand, and is supplied with all the modern conveniences, such as water works, electric lights, local and long distance telephone, ice plant, etc.

Four of the leading railways intersect at this place: The Fortworth & Denver, Santa Fe, Rock Island and the Pecos Valley. Another road, the Amarillo and Southern, will soon be in operation. Amarillo has an altitude of 3640 feet above sea level, giving to it a climate similar to that of Colorado in summer time and unequalled by any other part of Texas.

The nights are always cool and the days scarcely ever unpleasantly warm. No surface water is used but water is furnished in abundance by deep wells. The air is bracing and healthful, with not a trace of malaria.

Certain types of asthma are cured without medicine so they say. The winter's as a rule are not very cold, but are very subject to great extremes for a short time. The wind blows almost continuously but doesn't seem to penetrate very much in summer.

Cane, wheat, oats, milo maize, kafir corn are raised to some extent, but farming is in an experimental stage at present. Land owners and agents are preparing a car for exhibiting Panhandle products which is to make a tour through the east this fall and winter, for the purpose of bringing in more people, in order to sell land. But the safest way is I think is for a fellow to see for himself, for while there are advantages there are also disadvantages, as they sometimes have a little hail, as I witnessed one storm in which the hail killed Jack rabbits, but this I think was uncommonly rough.

The most useful thing is the barbed-wire telephone, which also serves as the top wire on a fence, which is used on account of scarcity of posts.

This from my observation and inquiry and it is not right, why then it is up to you to come and get it as it really is. With best regards to the PRESS and its readers. I close.

Pain from a Burn Promptly Relieved by Chamberlain's Pain Balm.

A little child of Michael Strauss, of Vernon, Conn., was recently in great pain from a burn on the hand and as cold applications only increased the inflammation, Mr. Strauss came to Mr. James N. Nichols, a local merchant, for something to stop the pain. Mr. Nichols says: "I advised him to use Chamberlain's Pain Balm, and the first application drew out the inflammation and gave immediate relief. I have used this balm myself and recommend it very often for cuts, burns, strains and lame back, and have never known it to disappoint." RAY STANNARD BAKER.

Career of the Magazine Sociologist.

Marched With "General" Coxey.

Ray Stannard Baker, the magazine sociologist, or "muck raker," as some prefer to call him, got much of his knowledge of the plain people at first hand. Long before he broke into the magazine field he was a reporter in Chicago, and in 1894 he "covered" for his paper the great coal strike in western Pennsylvania. When he arrived on the firing line he was welcomed with stones and brickbats and displaying his reporter's shield only served to convince the Hungarian strikers that he was one of the hated deputy sheriffs. The mob was about to brain him with a hinged when he had the presence of mind to recall the name of their leader, Davis, whom he knew. He shouted "Davis" until that worthy rescued him from the Huns. When "General" Coxey marched on Washington, Baker went along and from intimate association with the latter-day army accumulated a rare lot of impressions and experiences. He persuaded one of the oddest of the "soldiers of peace" to keep a diary of the trip, to get the view of the real participants, and this remarkable diary he still preserves.

Mr. Baker was born in Lansing, Mich., April 17, 1870. He was graduated from the University of Michigan in 1890 and subsequently took a partial law course and studied in literature at the same university. He has traveled extensively and written about it. In 1896 he married Jessie, daughter of Professor W. J. Reel, Ph. D., of the University of Michigan.

We are authorized to announce W. F. COWPER, of Smithland, as a candidate to represent the counties of Crittenden and Livingston in the next General Assembly, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

The case of the commonwealth against H. H. Loving for the killing of J. A. Rose is on trial at Paducah.

We are glad indeed to the great increase in advertising that fills the Press this week, but on account of it we were forced to leave over until next week several letters from our correspondents and fully two columns of local news.

The Editor of the Press returns thanks to the committee for ticket to the Press box at the "Bryan Southern States Reception" which was given Wednesday Sept. 12th, at Louisville and regrets his inability to attend. It is intended to give the great democratic leader an ovation which he will never forget.

Mrs. H. V. McChesney, of Frankfort, is expected here tomorrow to spend a few days with relatives and friends.—Mr. Zed Bennett, the popular insurance man of Marion, was in the city a few days the first of the week.—Mr. J. H. Rutter, a prominent merchant of Carrsville, spent a few days here the first of the week, attending court.—Mrs. E. E. Browning and Mrs. F. V. Maclock, who were in Paducah Saturday.—Judge and Mrs. Thos. Evans and Mrs. G. W. Duley accompanied Misses Elaine Evans and Vivian Duley to St. Vincent to place them in school.—Livingston Banner.

An Old Paper Found.

A copy of the Marion Monitor, B. F. Copland, Editor, dated Oct. 5, 1888 has been brought to the Press office by Mrs. H. A. Cameron. It was found in the effects of the late J. N. Woods, and has his name written on the upper corner.

From it we see that Miss Effie Wilson has returned from Springfield, Tenn., where she visited Miss Sallie Bridges.

Misses Cora Pierce, Mary Wilson and Mattie Blue went to St. Louis on a pleasure trip Monday.

A. C. Moore has purchased a residence of A. J. Pickens adjoining lot to Mr. Kevil and will take possession Nov. 1st.

Mrs. Myra Williams, of Goleonda, Ill., who has been visiting friends in this place returned home Sunday morning accompanied by Henry V. Stone.

Miss Fleta Barnes who has been visiting for two weeks in this place returned to her home in Providence last Saturday accompanied by her father.

Harry McChesney Withdraws.

In the following letter Mr. McChesney gives his reasons. Mr. McChesney's letter is as follows:

To the Democracy of the State: I have decided to withdraw from the race for the nomination for Auditor in the coming State primary. Conditions have arisen since my announcement which make it apparent that in order to make the character of campaign necessary to give me a fair chance to win I would be obliged to expend, in a perfectly legitimate way more money than I feel I could afford to spend in winning an office with no larger salary than the office of Auditor carries.

In retiring from the race I do not do so in the interest of the candidates for the position. They are both my friends, both loyal Democrats and both thoroughly competent to fill the position; may the best man win.

The record made by the present State administration will entitle the nominees of the primary to win in 1907, and by an increased majority even over the last State election.

Grateful to Kentucky's splendid Democracy for honors conferred upon me in former campaigns, I pledge my loyal support of all its platforms and nominees, and especially do I wish to assure the candidates before the present primary that when the ticket is nominated and the fight comes on next year I will be "on the firing line." Very truly,

H. V. MCCHESNEY,
Frankfort, Ky., Sept. 4, 1906.

DYCSBURG.

The canning factory is the centre of business in Dycsburg. More than 120,000 cans have been sealed. Farmers are obliged to wait for hours for their turn to weigh tomatoes. The best families in town furnish labor in different departments of the work. Messrs. J. A. Graves and J. R. Glass move amidst the hum of machinery, the chatter and laughter of the peelers and various things attendant upon the enterprise, with the utmost urbanity and conditions attendant upon the factory wear a most cheerful and flourishing aspect. Fifty-two wagons came in on one day.

On Sunday night when the rain was falling softly and all honest people were taking their midnight repose, the town of Dycsburg, was aroused by the cry of "fire! fire!" Alarm guns were fired, hastily robed citizens sped along the slippery walks, women and children screamed in terror, and lanterns flashed hither and thither in search of the devouring flames. The mad chase discovered the fact that an intoxicated citizen confined in the lock-up indulged in the cry of "fire" in order to secure a drink of water. His vigorous vociferation enriched the coppers of the town $17 after his trial for disturbing this people's natural rest.

Rev. Elgin will preach the dedicatory sermon at the new Methodist church in Dycsburg the third Sunday in September. The seats have been received and the church has been elegantly furnished inside. Rev. Robt. Johnson has ordered and received a beautiful Bible for the sacred desk. Let it be hoped that many a priceless text expounded from the voluminous donated to this church overlooking our town from a verdant hill-top will live in the memory and beautify the lives of those who attend to listen or to worship.

Shipping to Reform Boys Is Out of Date

By A. E. WINSHIP,
Editor of the Journal of Education.

THE world's progress is largely determined in crises. The inertia of human nature makes necessary some intense public interest in order to readjust tendencies of thought and action. A combination of recent circumstances has changed the relation of the home, the school and the court to the boy in New England, and by no possibility can the conditions be placed back where they were six months ago.

The question is not whether it spoiled the child to spare the rod 3,000 years ago, but whether hereafter you will not spoil the child by swinging the rod. Solomon has for 30 centuries been the idol of the rod master, but it is nowhere recorded that the spare-not-the-rod theory made Solomon a model in morality. Nor are there statistics available which prove that the boys who are much whipped are good boys, nor that they grow good with whipping. All available data proves that in the home, the school and the jail those who indulge in severe and frequent punishment establish vicious and criminal tendencies.

The idea that punishment is reformatory is as much out of date as blood letting. No sane man now breaks a colt; he trains it. No great express company or other establishment that has many and valuable horses will allow any employee to strike or speak harshly to a horse.
One company with more than 3,000 horses dismisses without ceremony any one who shows violence or excitement toward a horse. A man would be adjudged insane who should claim that thrashing a colt made a good horse.

The making of a bad boy good is a great proposition. It is never accomplished by suppression or subjugation, by fettering or hampering. The bad boy's purpose must be changed, his desires, aspirations, tastes, must face earnestness and purpose. There must be relish for better things.

Fear is out of date in dealing with Americans, odd or young. The greater the risk in any physical or financial venture, the keener the desire to undertake it. The rage for football is intensified by the hazard of it. College presidents and parents who never played may cry out against its danger, but no fellow with mettle has been heard to whine because he might get hurt or even killed. Prospect of physical pain is not a deterrent force in America to-day. That is no longer a mode of approach in reform. Even fear of the gallows has no effect when one purports murder. Men and boys find keenest relish in doing whatever represents the greatest risk.

No bad boy is made good by being terrorized. A fellow who will hesitate to do or dare anything simply from fear of the physical consequences would be regarded as a "sissy," and a boy prefers to be a wounded lion than a living "sissy."

Any appeal to a boy of spirit to-day must approach him from the standpoint of doing things that are heroic. Judge Lindsey's greatest hold of the bad boys of Denver is that he always has them do something that they are not expected to be trusted to do. When he sends a boy to the reformatory, 200 miles away, alone, after he has dodged and defied the police for ten days, that boy would as soon die as not to show up there. When the judge let every boy in the state industrial school go to Denver for a day when the G. A. R. had possession of the city, every boy was determined that not only he but every other fellow should return on time and in good condition. There was more heroism in behaving oneself in a city in a great crowd than in anything else that presented itself. Trusting, not thrashing, makes a bad boy good, when the trusting represents an appeal to heroic conduct.
Whipping will not make a bad boy good in America to-day, but it may make a good boy bad.

The Unthinkable in Science

By ARTHUR BENINGTON.

turning the tables on science and charging it with asking the world to believe the "unthinkable."

It began when an eminent man of science published an article stating that he rejected Christianity because many of its articles of faith were, in the light of modern science, "unthinkable," and citing as examples of doctrines of the Trinity, transubstantiation, the resurrection of the dead, etc. To this a famous writer replied by asking: "Are the most recent discoveries and theories of modern science any easier to understand or to believe than those of religion?"
He called attention to the words of certain modern mathematicians as an example. One of these writes gravely on the properties of bodies having more than three dimensions. Euclid, the founder of modern mathematics, propounded as an axiom that nothing can have more than three dimensions—length, breadth and thickness. A line has length, but neither breadth nor thickness; a plane surface has length and breadth, but no thickness; a solid has length, breadth breadth and thickness. But this modern man of science discusses objects which may have length, breadth, thickness and some other dimensions, or several other dimensions, for he asserts that it is as easy for it to have an infinite number as only four. Another great mathematician is writing solemnly of infinite spaces included in other infinite spaces; yet another treats of the possibility of drawing an infinite number of lines parallel to a straight line, through a given point, while still another proves beautifully to his own satisfaction that it is impossible to draw a line parallel to another line.

"Modern science," in whose name certain men reject the doctrines of Christianity as "unthinkable," has no hesitation in asking the world to believe such seemingly "unthinkable" propositions as those mentioned, to say nothing of the marvels of wireless telegraphy and radium, which, a few years ago, were equally "unthinkable."

The controversy rages back and forth, the men of science standing bravely to their guns and the men of faith laughing in their sleeves at the contortions of their learned antagonists, while the general public is getting some mental gymnastics such as it has not had in generations.

A MUSTARD POULTICE.

It Made a Lot of Trouble and Didn't Cure the Cold.

Lord Carrington used to be a great practical joker, but he was once the victim of his own reputation. According to the Dundee Advertiser, he was at a hotel in Cape Town. In the same hotel were a young couple, and, the husband having a bad cold, the wife left her room to obtain for him the solace of a mustard poultice. She left him asleep, and, thinking she knew her way, descended the stairs and procuring a particularly virulent concoction, made her way back to her room. But doors are much alike in hotels, and, seeing one ajar, as she had left her own, she entered. Creeping quietly to the bedside, she saw, as she thought, the form of her sleeping lord and master. Hastily bandaging over him, she placed the fatal irritant upon his chest.

No sooner had she done so than a movement of the sleeper revealed, to her horror, that she had made a terrible mistake. Too frightened to recapture the infuriating poultice, she fled from the room and, rushing down the passage, discovered her own door and bolted herself in. It was but a minute, and the storm broke. The hotel was in an uproar. The mustard poultice had been placed on the chest of the elderly governor general. The explosion of his wrath, his howls of rage as the mustard did its work, brought servants and manager to his bedside.
The situation did not permit of an explanation. Furious with indignation, he declared himself the victim of a gross joke, and the efforts of the matron charged to pacify him were in vain.
He swore that the practical joker was nobody else than Lord Carrington, and the next day, finding and indignant, left the place. So did a very contrite young wife and a husband whose cold was no better.

JAWS AS WEAPONS.

Chief Means of Defense Among All Old World Apes.

Among all old world apes, the teeth are the chief weapons for defense against natural foes and for combats for mates or tribal supremacy. The canines are in most cases enormously developed, inasmuch that ill informed naturalists have suggested that a near relationship must exist between the primates and the carnivera. As a matter of fact, these formidable teeth have nothing to do with alimentation, but are as purely weapons of war as are the bayonet and the Maxim gun. In practically every emergency demanding unusual energy, obstinacy and courage they come into play.

In every conflict with the world, the flesh and the devil—as such things are understood in phiboid society—the temporal and masseter muscles are the chief fighters of war. To become a great and powerful anthropoid it is absolutely and brutally necessary to have a large and strong jaw, to give them attachment to the teeth and good leverage to the muscles. That for an immense epoch our prehuman ancestors achieved success in life in like manner is as clear as the print of "Mingo" to those who have learned to read nature's handwriting.

Since those days of true Arcadian simplicity our life has become bewil-deringly complex and our methods for settling social difficulties have changed generally for the better. But here, as in so many other instances, the habits of a past age have left an indelible impression on the nervous system.—Blackwood's Magazine.

Her Namesake.

When Mrs. Lombard heard that the baby of her former cook had been named for her she bought a suitable rattle with many jingling bells and went to see her namesake.

"Why, Bridget," she said to the late Miss Leahy, now Mrs. O'Sullivan, "I thought you said the baby was named for me. My name is Hannah, and you are calling the baby Celestine."

"Celestine L. ma'am," said Mrs.
O'Sullivan hastily. "The 'L' is for Lombard, and Celestine is just a kind of a name to describe you, ma'am.
There ain't any Hannah to your looks,
Mrs. Lombard; any way would tell you that."—Yonah's Companion.

A Remarkable Fortress.

In the northern part of Madagascar is the most remarkable natural fortress in the world. It is occupied by a wild tribe who call themselves the people of the rocks. The fortress is a lofty and precipitous rock of enormous size, 1,000 feet high and eight square miles in area. Its sides are so steep that it cannot be climbed without artificial means. Within it is hollow, and the only entrance is by a subterranean passage.

Origin of the Sidesaddle.

The use of the sidesaddle for women riders is traced to the time of Anne of Bohemia, eldest daughter of the emperor of Germany, who married Richard II. of England. Previous to this date all Englishwomen bestrode their horses man fashion, but on account of a deformity this German bride was forced to use a sidesaddle, and the custom became general.

A Plea For Cannibalism.

Bronson Alcott, the Concord philosopher, once made a strong and almost unanswerable plea for cannibalism. "If you are going to eat meat at all," argued the Yankee Plato, "why not eat the best?"

The Way to Get a Chance.

It may not be to the credit of mankind, but in this world no man is "given" a chance. If he wants a chance he has to throw it down and sit on its neck.—Columbia State.

Beware of looking at sin, for not each view it is apt to become better looking.

Obituary.

Brother J. W. Cook was born at Pittsburg, Pa., May 6, 1822 and died at his residence in Crittenden county, Kentucky, August 25, 1906. Brother Cook professed faith in Christ when a young man and joined the Methodist Episcopal church at Pittsburg. He came to Crittenden county in 1850 and joined the M. E. Church South, at Bells Mines. After a few years he moved his membership to Mt. Zion in the Marion, now Shady Grove circuit. He served as steward in this church for twenty years, being released only when the infirmities of old age came on and he could not serve longer. He loved the church and was a true friend of the preachers; and he said Mt. Zion must pay out this year, which she will do. His home has been the preachers home for fifty years.

How I do miss him. He had a great desire to see Mt. Zion build up, and on Thursday before he died on Saturday we closed a great meeting at Mt. Zion, and he had the pleasure to welcome in the church a neighbor for whom he had prayed for forty years. He was married four times. His first wife was Miss Mary Ann Wheatcroft, the second Miss Verelda Clifton, the third Mrs. Sarah Ann Pickering and the fourth Mrs. Elizabeth J. Leighfield, all of whom were faithful christians and preceded him to the home of the saints.

On the 15th of August he was taken suddenly and violently ill. Dr. Newcomb was sent for and in twenty-five minutes he was present and in a short time Dr. Driskel, of Marion, arrived, but nothing could be done to give relief and in less than five hours he died. Thus a good and faithful brother has passed away. He was buried in the Mt. Zion cemetery in the presence of a large number of friends and relatives.

The pains of death are passed. Labor a sorrow cease; And life's long warfare closed at last. His soul is found in peace. Soldier of Christ, well done! Praise be thy new employ; And while eternal ages run, Best in thy Saviour's joy.

R. C. LOVE.

Letter from Illinois.

GRANITE CITY, ILL.

Dear Editor:—I've not seen any peaches as large as those I saw in your office window the 16th day of August. I left Marion about 1:30 that same day I saw the peaches, reaching Evansville at 4 o'clock. I had only an hour to wait for an I. C. train going north to Newton, Ill., where the Annual Campmeeting of the Jasper county Holiness Association met under a large tent on the Fair grounds.

The meeting began under the leadership of D. F. Brooks, D. D. of the holiness University of Oskaloosa, Iowa, and D. A. Hill, of Columbus, Ohio, and Rev. P. C. Carlin, my traveling companion in the gospel. I had charge of the singing. The meeting was well attended and about 50 were converted, 23 claimed and sanctified. It was an old time shouting campmeeting.

Carlin and I are here in Granite City in a meeting. Meeting starts well. The people are hungry for a revival.

Granite City is a regular bee hive of industry. Rolling mills, steel and box factories and nearly all kinds of factories.

I am well and happy, soul and body, saved to the uttermost. Love to all my Kentucky friends and all who read this, W. E. CHARLES.

A St. Louis Letter.

EAST ST. LOUIS, Sept. 2, 1906. Mr. S. M. Jenkins, Marion, Ky.—

We arrived in East St. Louis on August 14th and found our daughter Minna very sick which was caused by a fall down a stairway in the Grand Leader in St. Louis on the 7th of July. She has been in a very critical condition for near five weeks and at this writing we have hopes that her condition is better.

I have been at work since our arrival here at Swift & Co's stock yards, where they have about 12,000 men and women employed with an average of $2.00 per day wages. They slaughter daily about 2,000 head of hogs and about 1,000 head of cattle. I am sixty-five years old but the Swift stock yards is the busiest place that I have ever seen and every Wednesday when pay day rolls around we think it no wonder that we have to pay high prices for meat. There are long trains of Mexican and Texas cattle comes in every day and almost as many trains of meat shipped out.

There is no part of the hog or cow that is lost and notwithstanding the fact that there are so many animals slaughtered, there is no offensive odor around the plant, all the floors, docks platforms and via-flocks are scrubbed twice a week. The plant covers twenty acres and the Armour plant adjoining Swifts is about as large and does about as good a business.

I get the good old Press every Friday and just such scrambling as we have to see who shall read it first, and Mr. Editor whilst I think of it I will you please change the address of my paper from 1107 North 18th St., East St. Louis to 1827 Parsons Avenue, East St. Louis, Ill., and greatly oblige your friend,

S. B. WELDON, East St. Louis, Ill.

MEANING OF MOLES.

On the right side of the upper lip a mole promises great good fortune to both sexes.

A mole on the neck, in man or woman, promises a long and happy life, wealth and fame.

A science, or pseudo-science, of moles has existed among the Pennsylvania Dutch for many years.

A man with a mole in the middle of his forehead has a cruel mind; a woman with such a mole is foolish, idle and envious.

A man with a mole on the left side of the upper lip rarely marries, and such a mole in the case of a woman denotes suffering.

A mole on the right side—a man's forehead denotes wonderful luck; on the right side of a woman's forehead, gifts from the dead.

On the left side of a man's forehead a mole denotes a long term in prison; on the left side of a woman's forehead, two husbands, and a life of exile.

According to this science, no one is without a mole or two, and these are some of the prognostications that mole-wearers may draw from their brow ornaments:

SOME BEDROOM DON'TS.

Don't lie in the same position all night if you can help it.

Don't cover your head with the bedclothes. Have your covers warm but light.

Don't go to bed hungry. Eat any light simple food that you wish if it agrees with you.

Don't sleep in a room that is too cold. From 55 to 60 degrees is the right temperature.

Don't go to bed with cold feet, but see to it that they are warm and comfortable before you get in bed.

Don't fill your bedroom with bric-a-brac and draperies, but have as little as possible in it to catch the dust.

Don't put your pillows in the sun, as it draws the oil out of the feathers. Sun the bed and bedding, but place the pillows out of the sunlight in a current of air.

BITS OF INFORMATION.

The Eton College Chronicle expresses the opinion that lawn tennis is fit for "tame curates" only.

Chicago's population now exceeds that of Vienna. The figures are: Chicago, 1,700,000; Vienna, 1,675,000.

The Cape Colony authorities have been petitioned to set apart a "poets' corner" in the cathedral at Capetown.

The Welsh national elstidford is the biggest open-air concert in the world. At least 20,000 people attend it every year.

The new regulation in the British army that "no relaxation of the eye-sight test can ever be allowed" is regarded as marking the disappearance of the eyeglass among the officers.

The greater part of the almost $2,000,000 worth of firecrackers annually exported by China comes to New York. And the United States stands next to China in the use of them.

WHISPERED WISDOM.

If you wish to be considered essential be careful that the wounds you cause be healed only by yourself.

Be grateful the longer you are blind. The happiness is rare that can stand being scrutinized with keen eyes.

Never neglect yourself. On the last day of your life even, your face may become the guiding star of another's life.

If you learn to look brightly at life as a whole you will find for the sorrows of the individual the true sympathy that is the true balm.—Mme. Leandre.

WAYSIDE WIT.

"Marriage is sometimes an accident," says the Cynical Bachelor, "from which it takes a lifetime to recover."

Wigg—"Was he born great, or did he achieve his greatness?" Wagg—"I rather think he thrust himself upon it."

"Everything comes to him who waits," quoted the Wise Guy. "Yes, if he waits on himself," added the Simple Mug.

Wigg—"Bjones is awfully haughty since he made his money." Wagg—"Bjones has always been haughty. You know he used to be a hotel clerk."

SOCIETY'S REAL LEADER

Mrs. Astor is the Reputed Head, but it is Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish who Entertains Most Lavishly, Introduces the Novelties and Spends the Most Money.

To come to the point at once: For all that Mrs. Astor is the recognized head of the famous "Four Hundred," Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish, of Newport, New York and the "Four Hundred," is America's leading society personage.

She has spent a bigger fortune on social entertainments than any other woman of her day and generation, probably than any other woman who has lived in America.

She was one of the summer pioneers at Newport, and her social life there has helped most powerfully to make that hot weather city by the sea famed on two continents.

She is the most consistent, most regular entertainer in this country. Mrs. Astor gives one or two big functions in the course of a twelve month; Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish does not average less than a half dozen a year, and her small dinners, receptions and other lesser entertainments are several times more numerous than the weeks. No other member of the socially elect is so much the hostess, and but few of the titled social lights of Europe, where entertainment is more heavily gone in for than here, can equal her record of functions, big and little, of the past ten or fifteen years.

The various epochal steps in her social career are marked by the most extraordinary entertainments, embracing, as the alliterative circus press agent would put it, startling, stupendous, stupefying, stunning innovations.

"Only Mrs. Fish would dare to do such a thing," is a stock comment by her associates.

In brief, it may be said that it was she who set the style of entertainment and amusement that has been in vogue among the millionaire and multimillionaire social devotees of recent years, and of little money, too. The cakewalk, gymkhana races, society vaudeville, private theatricals by professionals on an elaborate scale, costume and symbolical dances, and festivals on a scale even more magnificent, and true to times past to the slightest detail; the engagement of the world's most noted and highest-priced song-birds for an afternoon or evening of music—all these widely copied features of present day big "S" society amusement she either planned out and introduced, adapted to her uses, or was instrumental in giving them their popularity.

Mrs. Fish is, in truth, the genius—one may almost say, the brains—of the "Four Hundred." And, strange as it may seem she is one of its bitterest critics.

She is easily the busiest society devotee in the country, and yet for all her ramifying interests in this butterfly sort of existence she somehow finds a great deal of time to devote to charitable and philanthropic work. This, however, does not attract the attention that her unusual modes of entertaining do, and naturally, so that Mrs. Fish could be easily misjudged by one not familiar with her except on her social side.

Society counts her one of its most open-handed members. Many a young woman, now safely launched on a business career, owes her start to Mrs. Fish. She is particularly keen to help young girls with talent for the arts but with no money to secure them the necessary coveted education. Her fondness for grand opera and classical music in general has led her to be the good fairy to quite a number of girls ambitious to become prima donnas in time.

A story is told of her way of carrying good messages to those hoping against hope.

It seems that a well known painter of portraits was commissioned to paint Mrs. Fish. At a sitting the conversation turned on art students, and this led the artist to tell of a certain young woman in one of his classes who was making exceptional progress, who seemed to have what is known among the profession as the divine fire, but who was soon to lay down her brush and palette for the stenographer's pencil because of lack of funds. "But," added the speaker, "mark my words, she'll be back in the class as soon as she has managed to rake and scrape together enough money to give her another course of instruction."

Two nights later Mrs. Fish, unaccompanied, unexpectedly appeared before the portrait painter as he was busy in the class room.

"Show me the student you were telling me of the other day," she commanded.

Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish

education being supplied through the man who quite incidentally brought the young woman's case to the attention of Mrs. Fish.

A rather daring and out-of-the-ordinary way of engaging in philanthropic work, but in her social life she is even more daring and ingenious.

Recently she set the tongues of the country's gossips to wagging when it was announced that she was to give a dinner at which the guests were to appear in bathing suits. Newport has it that before the season is finally over she is expected to give a yachting-party indoors entertainment, at which, it is whispered, the guests will be received, amused and dined in a yacht, in her great ballroom in Crossways, a marble "cottage," and one of her three homes.

There is her city house in Seventy-eighth street, New York, and her third house is known as "Glenclyffe." It is at Garisons-on-the-Hudson, opposite West Point, and is the old home of the Fishes.

At her "Harvest Festival" some time ago, Mrs. Fish transformed the spacious lawn of her Newport "cottage" into a farm. Sheaves of wheat, shocks of corn and haystacks of conventional size were scattered about; one corner of the lawn was a pasture, where two oxen, fresh from a Rhode Island farm, quietly grazed. The house itself was stored with products of the soil; agricultural implements that had been in daily use decorated the rooms. Mrs. Fish, representing the goddess of agriculture, received her guests on a dais of plows, reapers, cultivators and what not. The broad piazza was made into a grape arbor, the living vines bearing luscious clusters of fruit; the flower beds and the stone wall were planted with the kinds of wild flowers that are to be found in every countryside.

To obtain the harvest effect desired Mrs. Fish bought up a goodly portion of the crops of a small Rhode Island farm; and its owner also made a second pretty penny by placing the sheaves of wheat, the haystacks, the shocks of corn and other things in traditional manner.

She has had an entire theatrical company, stars and chorus, provide post-midnight vaudeville for a house full of guests. She has made over her town ballroom into a small theater, the stage being complete in every detail. She has had a special play written for production by her.

At a dinner the table's centerpiece was a lake, on which little yachts steamed and in which fish darted. At her umbrella dinner each guest sat under a costly and rare umbrella as patient search on her part and money could secure. At her peace ball, which reproduced the famous one held at Mt. Vernon in 1782, she filled her Newport house with furniture and decorations of the period, spending thousands of dollars to give the affair as correct a setting as possible.

As a result of her work in connection with the ball, Mrs. Fish is a recognized authority on the peace ball and entertainment and other things colonial. She spent weeks in studying up on the subject before she began actual work on the ball; her thoroughness in this matter is but indicative of her thoroughness in all things. Therefore, her days are crowded with work.

As a critic of the Newport set Mrs. Fish is certainly thorough-going and refreshing. Probably no one outside the charmed circle of the "Four Hundred" has spoken or written harsher things about it. She says that the Newport folk are "uniformly stupid." She ascribes little or no brains to not a few, and generally and specifically she declares that they are "too crazy about dukes and such things." Her strictures

SCENCES

CHAMBERLAIN.

Downs was in a quandary. He had accepted an invitation to dinner and he had seated beside Mrs. Clew, in ordinary circumstances the gallant colonel with his anticipations. But he wished her anywhere else.

He and his friend Harve had a little corner in the room, and among the who had been caught in the firm of Pratt & Gordon's husband. Harve, who the pool, had insisted leniency; and as a result it was pretty certain that he would be forced to how much Mrs. Gordon's husband's affairs Downs, not tell. But if she happened to be in his hand, it was at trouble awaited him. The colonel's reputation with a woman, however attractive, was something he would not consent to do. His husband's firm, it was clearly not to be.

He sat, and it was quite clear to her. He must do like all great captains, and attack the best of his ability. For, if any of her attention from him was Downs' conversation, he threw himself into it, by telling her some of his recent Southern life and the beauty of his country. Obviously he was to some of his war in extremity the colonel's back upon the adventure. He had during his Southern Valley, he re- time, the Shenandoah Valley, one of the most beautiful in the South.

Downs dropped his hand and gazed at her in a moment in sheer amazement. "Why," he stammered, "Why, I—Good heavens!" he exclaimed. "Do you mean to say that you—"

"Yes," she said. "I think I was the one. I feel sure I must have been. I thought, of course, I was so young that I can't really be certain. I remember such an incident—of a Northern soldier's stopping there and the horsemen riding up. But I never should have guessed it was you."

"And you—you were the little girl I found there at the spring house," Downs exclaimed. "Why, it's simply astonishing." He looked at her critically. "Black hair and eyes," he murmured. "Do you know, I believe—there's no mistake. You're not as I thought that girl—you, I mean—would look. And yet," he gazed at her again, "there is something about you that seems familiar, too—an expression about the eyes, a look that I seem to have seen before. This is certainly a wonderful coincidence."

"Yes, isn't it?" she motioned him to a seat beside her own. "I wish I could remember it better," she added. "But I was so young then, and so many things happened in those war days. I used often to watch the soldiers march past the house. And when the stragglers would come along I would sometimes slip off down to the spring house, where they stopped."

"Well, I'm glad I happened to tell it," said Downs. "And, do you know, I felt from the first that there was something strangely attractive about you. I must tell Fenwick and the others."

"No, please don't mention it," she said hurriedly. "It would be most embarrassing for me."

"Of course, whatever you wish. But I feel as though I owed you the public acknowledgment. I don't see why—" "Call it a woman's vanity," she answered, with a laugh.

"Why, yes. Don't you see, if I was eight years old in war times, I must be—oh, ever so old by now."

"And you must understand that I never could have mentioned it, even now, if you had not spoken so kindly—of what I may call our former meeting. And, of course, I wouldn't interfere with your business affairs, even by a suggestion. But I know, from the way you spoke, what you would wish to do."

She paused and looked at him appealingly. Downs' eyes were fixed gloomily upon the carpet.

"I would never have dared suggest it—but you spoke so kindly—of course, if it would cause you loss—"

"No," Downs admitted helplessly. "I suppose it wouldn't be much loss."

"Then you can?" she said, eagerly. "I'm—I'm afraid," he stammered weakly, "that it's hardly possible. Harve is—the you see, he is really—that is, it's being managed by Harve, you know. I myself haven't anything to do with it—well, he is really the one who is managing it, you see."

"For a moment he wavered, while his standing with this woman and with George Harve hung in the balance."

"Yes," he gasped at length, dabbing his forehead with a handkerchief. "I suppose that I might—that I—I could help you. Yes, I will. I will send word to Mr. Pratt in the morning. Yes, you may rely upon me."

"I shall never forget your kindness," she said, with emotion.

"Oh, don't mention it! I'm—of course, you know, I'm only too glad of an opportunity to repay you."

Glaucius ap. Downs saw his wife approaching. He rose and held out his hand. Mrs. Gordon pressed it. "You have more than repaid me," she murmured, as he turned away.

"Why did I write you that I had done something awful and not tell you what it was?" said Mrs. Gordon, when she saw her husband a few days later. "Why, because I had done something awful, something perfectly dreadful. Oh, I believe I am the most wretched woman in the world. But I did save you, Clem. For you know he let Mr. Pratt have that stock, or whatever it was you wanted, the very next day. And I believe it was all that odious Harve, as you said at first. For he—I mean Mr. Downs, dear—is certainly one of the nicest old gentlemen I ever met. There is more in him than you would think. He has a kind heart—you needn't smile—indeed he has. His remembrance of that little girl who saved his life was perfectly lovely. And when I think how basely I acted—"

"You haven't told me yet how basely you did act," remarked her husband.

"Oh, it was perfectly dreadful. I don't see how I ever could have done it. I shall never get over it. I wish we had confessions and absolution in our church. My conscience will trouble me as long as I live, I'm sure. And if he should ever discover it, I should die. I know I should. I could never look him in the face again. And if he should happen to tell his wife, she would know at once. And even he might have known. Yes, he was very ready to believe me old enough. Why, I should have to be nearly forty-five. And he ought to know I wasn't even born when his battle of Gettysburg was fought."

"Whenever you feel like telling me, my dear," suggested her husband.

"Why, he told me a story, the most touching thing about a little girl who saved his life during the war. Down near grandfather's old place in Virginia; and—and I let him think I was the one who had done it."

"Oh, one of his war stories, eh? And he promised to let up on us, did he? Tell me the story; tell me all about it."

She did so.

"And you never would have thought he had so much real nobility, would you, dear? And when I think of how wickedly I imposed upon him—"

"Why," exclaimed her husband, after a moment's thought, "Downs never saw the Shenandoah Valley in war."

"What?"

FADS AND FANCIES.

By MINNA SCHATT CRAWFORD

Fashion's forecast for September points very emphatically to short sleeves and indicates that they are in higher favor than ever, not alone for waists and bodies, but for outer wraps. Advance importations of Paris styles now on view in the Fifth Avenue shops show the most pronounced fall and winter coats and wraps with half and three-quarter length sleeves, and this in spite of all predictions that the fall would see radical changes in sleeves. There's no denying the youthful effect of the short, puffed sleeves; they somehow take years off one's appearance, which helps to explain why the short sleeve is too well entrenched in my lady's favor to be quickly disposed.

A pleasing innovation is noted in the return of those becoming lace undersleeves that were the craze about six years ago. They are full length and close fitting, falling over the hands in long points, like mitts. Made of transparent lace, in either black or white, they are extremely effective, and the woman with thin arms will rejoice at their return to favor.

Sleeves have somehow grown to be the determining factor in fashions, the vital point, the center about which everything else revolves. This question of sleeve style settled, one can draw a breath of relief and go ahead with plans and preparations for the fall wardrobe.

with its sectional shirring, show its absolute newness at a glance. It is a costume whose counterpart has not yet been seen beyond Fifth Avenue.

The Waist Pattern No. 2112 is cut in sizes 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40 inches bust measure. Price 15 cents.

The Skirt Pattern No. 2113 is cut in sizes 22, 24, 26, 28 and 30 inches waist measure. Price 15 cents.

Ladies shirt waist with adjustable chemisette and two styles of sleeves. Suitable for separate waist of either silk, cotton or wool in any of the new fall goods. Combined with Skirt Pattern No. 2121 it would make a stylish dress for street or business. The Waist Pattern No. 2100 is cut in sizes 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40 inches bust measure. Price 15 cents.

Ladies' six-gored walking skirt, the front and back gores laid in plaits with inverted plait at hip. Cut in sizes 22, 24, 26, 28, 30 and 32 inches waist measure. Price 15 cents.

Ladies' street dress of silk wrap cashmere, trimmed with shaped emplacements of light weight broadcloth in the same or deeper shade, with vest of silk or lawn. The most striking feature of the coming fashions are shown in this advance model. The shaped armhole trimming, the flat, capetailed collar, and the battlemented effect of the skirt trimming.

CATALOGUE OF MISNOMERS.

"A silver shoehorn is a misnomer," said a philologist. "So is a wooden milestone. So is a steel pen."

"A shoehorn is a piece of horn, according to its name. How can it be made of silver? In like manner, a milestone cannot be made of wood—though they have them, the same as nutmegs in Connecticut—nor can a pen, which strictly means a feather, be made of steel."

New York and London

Items of Greatness in the Two Cities Where We Excel.

It is said of London, in praise of its greatness, that:

In London a child is born every three minutes and a death is recorded every five minutes. The city contains 700 railway stations, 5,000 omnibuses, 7,000 taxicabs, 1,000 cabs and 7,000 trams. Daily 1,000,000 persons travel on underground railways.

Eleven railway bridges span the Thames. Four thousand postmen deliver 10,000,000 letters weekly, walking a distance equal to twice the circumference of the globe. There are 10,000 miles of overhead telegraph wires, and the number of telegraph messages received in London in a year is 6,000,000.

Ninety million gallons of water are consumed daily. The railways, omnibuses, cabs and steamboats convey 1,273,000,000 passengers daily, and the underground railways 263,000,000 passengers.

The 118 square miles of London are lighted by 4,974 electric arc lights, 1,185 incandescent gas lamps and 18,248 flat damc gas burners.

Well, New York can do something in the same lines of municipal greatness.

With a smaller number of inhabitants than London it exceeds it in the volume of travel, in the amount paid for work, in the volume of work done, and in the increase in the number of buildings, occupants of a building and of population.

Where London consumes 90,000,000 gallons of water a day, New York consumes 500,000,000. Where London has in area of 118 square miles, New York has 320.

In New York every minute two immigrants arrive—more than 1,000,000 a year. Every six minutes a child is born. Every seven minutes there is a funeral. Every hour a new building is erected.

New York has more children at its public schools than London; fewer paupers; a lower death rate; fewer uninhabited houses; more parks, more bridges, fewer jails, a better distributed street traffic and a higher standard of health.

New York's subway carries more passengers in a day than London's underground. The number of crimes of violence is twice as large in London as in New York, and the number of arrests for drunkenness in London is four times as great as the number of arrests for the same cause in New York.

New York has more fires in a year than London, and they entail greater loss. It has less shipping as a port than London, fewer clerks to the whole population employed, but more bosses or employers.
